“ Idie, which is what I called her, was the most thoughtful and caring person I've had the privilege of knowing. She would always want to know how you were feeling and would never complain or mention how seriously ill she was. She was so much fun to be with, and would have you laughing until you forgot all your troubles. She was kind and generous and I will miss her terribly.

My sincerest sympathy to her family, especially her husband Hank, who cared for her night and day. Her children and grandchildren who were there by her side to give their love and support.
