“ I am so grateful to be a part of Grandmom's family. Few people you meet in life have such dedication to family as Grandmom. She had a clarity to see what matters most. She was not one for wasting energy on materialistic endeavors, cultural distractions, or dogmatic rigidity - she was laser focused on the 'here and now' spending time with family.

Such a strong matriarchal figure, she could cut through nonsense, put a complicated situation back into place with such authority and compassion. Always putting others' needs ahead of her own. Always making the kids feel important, loved, unique, special, and respected.

She had a gravity about her love that pulled you into her heart - you'd find yourself aligning with the full attention of a woman living life in a way that had a depth of which tapped into something beyond, which might be easy to miss because of the elegance of the simplicity to it all.

Grandmom certainly was a teacher, and being a part of her family taught me so much. She was a living example of how someone could properly align with more patience, more compassion, more clarity. Even simply paying attention with less distractions. Grandmom planted a seed in my heart and as years continue on, I understand the depth of her wisdom as it unfolds. I'm forever grateful to her many roles as a teacher, leader, inspiration, grandmother - in all these ways I've had privilege of knowing her. I love you Grandmom ❤️

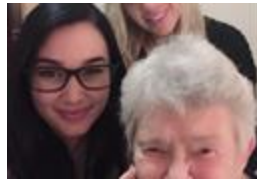

I know you are now at peace, joining with all the family who already watch over us. I find peace knowing you are in the arms of the Blessed Mother. Her love shined through you, and that's why your heart was always brighter than most.

“ My grandma was one of a kind. She was a living light of grace and compassion on this earth. She was beautiful, kind, selfless, nurturing, and generous. She was forgiving and accepting. Grandma was brilliant, funny, and always made everyone feel like they were the most important. She loved her family above all else and she was proud of us no matter what. She was the true definition of unconditional. I feel so honored to have you as my grandma, and that my kids had you as their great-grandma. I will forever be grateful to be your granddaughter.
