What takes us home? What makes us remember those things that made us who we are? At one time, Ninth street, Percy Street, Mildred Street were the center of our universe. We lived within one block of each other. Timmy made us marvel at his physical presence. Tommy LaRosa broke our toys. Rita and Mary Ann filled our homes with laughter. Mary and Ronnie made us see ourselves in retrospect. We all danced, and I will always remember my cousin Rita's sense of rhythm, and her saying, "I;m big, but I;m light on my feet." She now dances above us. She now laughs and dances with Susie, Russel, David, Gaetano, Liboria, Angie, Jennie, and all the Benignos. Dance again my cousin. Spread your love up there.
